

DMAT welcomes new expert to drive staff development | Press release

17th March 2021

Dartmoor Multi-Academy Trust (DMAT), which supports 17 schools across the region, is delighted to announce that Professor Michael Green has been appointed as Associate Executive Director of People Development.

Professor Green joins the Trust from Ofsted, where he served as one of Her Majesty's Inspectors of Education, with the appointment reflecting DMAT's commitment to developing its staff as well as its students, and ensuring that the whole school community is empowered to fulfil their potential.

Alongside his time at Ofsted, Professor Green brings a range of education experience, including work leading initial teacher education in higher education and as a government adviser.

He has also carried out international advisory work and held senior leadership positions within primary schools, as well as published articles and chapters on a variety of topics, including teacher workload, primary English and learning outside the classroom.

Passionate about supporting teachers in the early stages of their career, his job role will include overseeing and further developing the trust's strategy for the professional development of staff, including those new to the teaching profession.

He will begin work with the Trust on 19th April 2021.

Professor Michael Green, incoming Associate Executive Director of People Development, said:

"I am absolutely delighted to be joining Dartmoor Multi-Academy Trust, and welcome the opportunity to draw upon all my previous experience to make a positive impact on the community. It is an extremely exciting time for DMAT, and

I really look forward to working with staff across all its 17 schools.

“As has become acutely clear over the past 12 months, children and young people in our schools only get one chance in their schooling. In order for our children and young people to thrive and succeed, we need to harness the potential of our education colleagues, who are the beating heart of our education profession.”

Dan Morrow, CEO and Trust Leader for Dartmoor Multi-Academy Trust, said:

“I am thrilled that Michael is joining us on our mission to bring positive change to students and staff across Dartmoor. As a Trust, we value all of our teachers and staff enormously, and fully believe in supporting them to fulfil their potential. With Michael’s support and expertise, I am confident that we can do just that.”